OVERVIEW

F-Zero was a launch title for the SNES, introducing the world to futuristic racing with the original 4 machines, 3 leagues, and 15 courses. In 1996-1997, Nintendo and St. Giga distributed F-Zero to their Super Famicom Satellaview subscribers with 2 multi-week, timed events. BS F-Zero Grand Prix contained 4 new machines and 19 courses, including 4 new courses across 4 remixed leagues. BS F-Zero Grand Prix 2 used only the 4 new machines and 4 new courses from BS F-Zero Grand Prix, along with 6 more new courses, for a total of 2 leagues. A downloadable companion game, BS F-Zero 2 Practice, allowed players to race on 5 of the new courses, and has been preserved. Sadly, no known copies of the 5 Forest and Metal Fort courses have ever been found.

BS F-Zero Deluxe combines all 3 games into a single package, with the 5 lost courses meticulously restored from recorded footage. Two new leagues have been named BS-1 and BS-2, and present the 10 new courses as they were in BS F-Zero Grand Prix 2. Choose from any of the 8 machines, and race on 25 courses across 5 leagues.

GHOST RACERS

BS F-Zero 2 Practice introduced F-Zero to the concept of a Ghost, a phantom replay of the player's performance. This functionality has been included in BS F-Zero Deluxe, where you can save and race against a Ghost in Practice Mode.

NEW MACHINES

Blue Thunder accelerates quickly and turns well on corners.

Luna Bomber is very fast, but somewhat fragile and hard to control.

Green Amazone has fast acceleration and high durability, but poor handling.

Fire Scorpion has slower acceleration, but is durable and easy to steer.

NEW COURSES

Tip: In Practice Mode, ↑/↓ will change courses, and ←/→ will change leagues

GP1 MODE

BS F-Zero Grand Prix's leagues and courses can be accessed too! From the Grand Prix selection, simply press L+R to play remixed versions of GP1 Knight, Queen, King, and Ace Leagues, as well as BS F-Zero 2 Practice's Ace League. In Practice Mode, L+R will allow you to play the GP1 versions of 4 courses. Silence II, Sand Storm I, and Sand Storm II contain only minor differences, but Big Blue II is almost a different course!
